Online classes

NHCE has worked hard and has done a very good amount of research to almost flawlessly execute the online classroom programs.

The effective utilization of the Google Classroom app, the Zoom video calling app and also the usage of Google forms for attendance as proven to be effective in the progress of student's education

ONLINE CLASSES

The Department of Management Studies, NHCE in all its earnest and sincerity reports that the online classes and department management during the period of lockdown has been done strictly as per the class timetable, instruction of the Dean-Academics, Principal and the Management from time to time:

- The department has been successful in fully engaging all its students during the lockdown period by mentoring, guiding project work for the 4th Sem students, guiding seminar presentation for the 2nd Sem students and by having regular classes as per the time table.
- During the period of lockdown all possible technologies are used to the best possible extent. Be it WhatsApp, Google classrooms, Zoom classes (Till 16th April 2020), Cisco WebEx, etc.
- All the students have been provided with all the possible learning aid including PPTs, Notes, Case studies, Videos, Problems & solutions, etc. Students' questions are answered in the class itself be it Google classroom, zoom classes, and the Cisco WebEx classes.

COMPETENCY MAPPING AND CAREER DIRECTION WORKSHOP

The Department of Management Studies had conducted a Competency Assessment test for the Second Semester Students of MBA on 24th February, 2020. It's an assessment test that analyzes the patterns of behaviors from the answers given by the students and at the end it suggests the suitable career option in accordance with the abilities each and individual possess. The workshop for this test was carried out on 30th April, 2020 online via GoToWebinar app. The speaker John Puchathali, weighed in some great points in regards to the competencies an MBA student should encompass.
