Introduction to Regulatory Compliance - PowerPoint

What are Compliance Regulatory Requirements in the Banking industry?

- Risk management: Risk functions in banks have to change how they work, enable innovation and become more cost-efficient.
- Money laundering: Scandals have surfaced lately and large amounts of money were laundered through European banks. Even if they are not aware of laundering money, banks remain liable for Terrorism Funding and funding Drug cartels.
- Reporting: Proper reporting is a demanding process for banks which function in different jurisdictions. Each jurisdiction has different reporting standards, which makes the reporting projects more complicated.
- GDPR (General Data Protection Regulation) requirements: As banks are handling large quantities of personal information, data storage and management remains a significant compliance project. Some banks are trying to take advantage of GDPR by promoting their compliance with the regulation and in this way, enhancing trust and customer engagement.
- Economic and Trade Sanctions.
